LEARNING EXPERIENCES AND TEACHING METHODS:

Discussion, lecture, independent reading, group assignments, and in-class exercises are used to stimulate the development of an understanding of the principles of health care law and ethics.

In preparation as a knowledge worker, the student is responsible for the identification of individual learning needs, self-direction, and demonstration that learning has occurred. TAKE NOTES; ask questions - there is no such thing as a stupid question. Review your notes between classes and ask your instructor to clarify points that are not well understood before the start of another topic. Faculty will provide guidance to assist every student’s successful completion of this course.

Case Presentations and Class Participation

Although all students are expected to have read and be prepared to discuss all assigned cases, each student will serve as the lead discussant on selected cases. (The number will vary depending on the number of students enrolled in the course). As lead discussant, the student should be thoroughly knowledgeable of the case assigned and will be expected to provide the facts, issue, and holding of the case, as well as be prepared to answer any additional questions. Cases will be assigned randomly for preparation of a written brief of the case.

Examination

Each student will take a comprehensive final examination that will reflect the student's knowledge of basic legal terminology as well as the basic health care law topics. The examination will consist of objective and essay components.

Appellate Brief and Oral Argument

Students, in four-person teams, will be required to prepare an appellate brief on a selected case scenario and present oral argument related to such topic. Specifics regarding the content of such brief and oral argument will be given to students in the first 3 weeks of class.

Attendance
Students are required to attend 80% of all scheduled classes. With prior notice and sufficient justification, attendance at less than 80% of the scheduled classes may be permitted. Substantial remedial work will be required for each class missed. You do not need to call me if you are going to miss class.

Evaluation Input From Students

The faculty of the College of Nursing and Health Sciences places great value on evaluative input from students. Evaluation of courses, instructors and clinical facilities provides the College with important data which is used to strengthen the program. Data is analyzed as to trends and themes and is important to curriculum and sequencing decisions. All evaluations for courses posted are online. The online mechanism allows us the opportunity to tabulate and store information in order to analyze trends within the curriculum. Please be assured that this information is secured and not released until after grades are submitted. No names are available to faculty. In order to garner some reliability and validity, the College must have representative data from the student population. That representation, based on the literature, has been set at 70%. The College is anticipating that students will thoughtfully participate in the evaluation process which will assist the faculty with the growth of the program. A link to evaluations will be available on Blackboard toward the end of the semester. Thank you in advance for your assistance with the evaluation process.
