I. Course Description

This course provides an overview of the characteristics and needs of special student populations in a culturally diverse society. Emphasis will be placed on learning about special education, gifted and talented, culturally and linguistically diverse, and at-risk student populations. Instructional strategies, differentiated curriculum, and assessment will be examined in relation to these special populations.

The three variations of the Special Populations course (All Level = EDUC 4321, 4-8 = EDUC 4323 and EDUC 4322 = 8-12; EDUC 4324= EC-6) are based upon the three distinctive levels of teacher certification in the State of Texas. Each of these three courses requires field experiences and assignments in their respective levels of teacher certification. Every section of the Special Populations courses offered at TAMU-CC may include a mix of preservice teachers seeking any level of teacher certification. However, the field-based experiences/assignments of any given Special Populations class will be required at the appropriate EDUC 4321, EDUC 4322, EDUC 4323 or EDUC 4324 course level which matches the preservice teacher’s level of All Level, 8-12, 4-8 or EC-6 teacher certification, respectively.

II. Rationale
The schools of today are becoming increasingly culturally and linguistically diverse. In addition, most schools actively promote an “inclusive” academic environment. Special student populations served in inclusive general education classrooms include students with disabilities, gifted and talented students, culturally and linguistically diverse students, and students at-risk for school failure. Thus it is important for all teachers to understand how to adapt instruction to meet the needs of all students, especially those with special learning needs. While most are seeking teaching careers in the “general education” classroom and others are considering careers working specifically in special education or bilingual education, these two career paths are, in fact, rapidly conjoining.

III. Required, Supplemental, and Optional Course Materials
No text is required for this course. Necessary articles, videos, and online modules will be listed within the assignments.

Detailed Description of Course Requirements:

1. Class Attendance and Participation
   The Student Handbook and Code of Conduct 2014-20145 includes the following policy regarding class attendance:

   Students are held accountable for class attendance and are advised that excessive absences may adversely affect their grades (see course requirement for attendance above). Every instructor should clearly explain the policy on class attendance at the beginning of each course. If students are absent from class on approved university business (e.g., intercollegiate athletics competition/travel, field trips, student research conferences, Board of Regents meetings), faculty members should count [the absence] as an excused absence and should not penalize the student for it. Students [absent from a scheduled class meeting because of approved university business] should be allowed to make up any required course work in advance or after return to campus. Students are responsible for informing instructors about the [approved university absence] in advance, so instructors can plan accordingly. If [students] have any doubt as to whether the activity in question is considered official university business, [students] should contact the Provost’s Office [for clarification].

2. Initial Responses to Assigned Readings, Videos, IRIS Modules (10 points for EACH response POSSIBLE).

This activity requires you to either read the assigned material or watch the assigned videos and post an initial reflection/response to the reading or video which adds value to the reading or watching of the video. Students are required to post at minimum of 75 words or more words per assignment on the Discussion Board of the same name as the assignment i.e. you will post an initial response to Ethics Module: Boundaries under the discussion thread by that same name. WITH THE EXCEPTION OF WEEK 1, the initial responses will be due EVERY WEDNESDAY by 11:30 p.m. Central Standard Time.

I strongly recommend that you write your Initial Response in a word document and copy and paste it into Blackboard. This will keep you from losing your work in the event of a computer disconnect or issue.

Be sure to post your reflection before reading your peers.

All postings, Initial Responses to the Reading and Responses to Peers (see below), should add value and substance to the online conversation. Rather than just writing "I agree," write "I agree because...." It is the explanation of the "because" that adds value and substance to the online discussion. Participants in this class will not always agree with the instructor, their classmates, or any of the authors cited in the materials presented—but any university student should be able to explain the reason for their agreement or disagreement.

Explain how the knowledge or concept might have unintended consequences in the future. Remember that the written reflections you share with us are open ended conversations not summaries of the readings or formal essays about the reading. The thinking you share with the class does not have to have a clear beginning, middle, and end. It does not have to read like a coherent essay (though it may, if you so choose). But it ought to represent your serious thinking Responses that demonstrate serious thinking about the readings or videos, are professionally written, contain a minimum of 75 words, and use person-first language (see handout provided) will receive full credit. Responses that seem superficial and do not seem to demonstrate serious thinking will receive no credit.

Some examples of possible initial response content COULD include:

a. What are your feelings after having watched/read the assignment? Explain.
b. Are there any connections between the content and your life/work? Explain.
c. Do you have any additional questions after having seen the video or read the assignment?
d. Have you been surprised by what you’ve seen/read? Explain.
e. What do you consider the most important points of the video or reading? Why?
f. Are there points or concepts you don’t understand? Explain.
g. What did you learn? Explain.
h. Did you have any insights? Explain.
i. Have your feelings changed since you’ve watched the video or read the assignment? Explain.

j. What have you learned and how does this affect your perception of teaching?

k. DO NOT merely answer each question!

You may work ahead, but you cannot work backward in this course. Pay close attention to due dates and times. No late work will be accepted.

3. Response to Peers (5 points for EACH RESPONSE possible)

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF WEEK 1, you are required to post an INITIAL written response by Wednesday (11:20 p.m. Central Standard Time). You are then to respond to at least two (2) of your peer’s “Initial Responses to Assigned Readings” for each assigned reading by Sunday 11:30 p.m. Central Standard Time. All you have to do is select "Reply" on your peer's response and begin responding. Be sure to select "Submit" when you are finished with your reply.

All postings, Initial Responses to the Reading and Responses to Peers, should add value and substance to the online conversation. Each posting must be at LEAST 75 words in length. Rather than just writing "I agree," write "I agree because...." It is the explanation of the "because" that adds value and substance to the online discussion. Participants in this class will not always agree with the instructor, their classmates, or any of the authors cited in the materials presented—but any university student should be able to explain the reason for their agreement or disagreement.

Remember that the written reflections you share with me and your responses to peers are open-ended conversations not summaries of the readings or summaries of your peers’ postings. It should represent your serious thinking about the important consequences of particular beliefs (yours and others), and it must demonstrate that you have reflected on what you have read, and it ought to add value to the conversation about the reading.

Suggested Approach

Read a selection of your colleagues’ postings. As you read their responses, note those to which you would like to respond with advice, questions, comments, and/or encouragement.

Respond to two of your colleagues’ postings by suggesting ways to provide additional support or suggestions. You can also respond in any of the following ways:

- Build on something your colleague said.
- Explain why and how you see things differently.
- Ask a probing or clarifying question.
- Share an insight from having read your colleagues' postings.
- Offer and support an opinion.
- Validate an idea with your own experience.
- Ask for evidence that supports the posting.

Return to this Discussion in a few days to read the responses to your initial posting. Consider what you have learned and/or any insights you have gained as a result of the comments your colleagues made.
This is essentially a reflection of your reaction to the initial post and your peers’ posts. The key words are reflection/reaction – ABSOLUTELY no summary as all your peers will have already read what you are writing about.

Responses that demonstrate serious thinking about the reading will receive full credit. Responses that seem superficial and do not seem to demonstrate serious thinking will receive no credit.

4. Getting to Know You assignment directions are listed in the blue menu tab with the same title on Blackboard. Check the Course Calendar for specific directions.

5. Instructional Accommodations/Modifications Interview (100 points). See specific directions on BlackBoard.

9. The English Language Learner (ELL) lesson plan directions are listed in the blue menu tab with the same title on Blackboard.

13. Watch the attached PowerPoint on the English Language Proficiency Standards, and write 15 concepts or ideas that you learned from the PowerPoint. Navigating the ELPS(1).pptx See Course Calendar for complete directions.

You may work ahead, but you cannot work backward in this course. Pay close attention to due dates and times. No late work will be accepted.

  Dropping a Class
  I hope that you never find it necessary to drop this or any other class. However, events can sometimes occur that make dropping a course necessary or wise. Please consult with me... before you decide to drop to be sure it is the best thing to do. Should dropping the course be the best course of action, you must initiate the process to drop the course by going to the Student Services Center and filling out a course drop form. Just stopping attendance and participation WILL NOT automatically result in your being dropped from the class. Check the university academic calendar website for dates related to dropping a class with an automatic grade of "W" this term. See website http://www.tamucc.edu/academics/academic_cal.html.

• Academic Honesty
University students are expected to conduct themselves in accordance with the highest standards of academic honesty. In addition, the syllabus and class activities may be modified to allow continuation of the course. Ideally, University facilities (i.e., emails, web sites, and Blackboard) will be operational within two days of the closing of the physical campus. However, students need to make certain that the course instructor has a primary and a secondary means of contacting each student.
